PREFACE

Human consciousness is infinite, for eternal life one must be able to expand it through figurative thinking in certain areas laws that are explicitly or implicitly revealed in the book.

In sudden, creatively controlled transitions perception from one image to another, clearly unrelated to it it is possible to discover information that will ensure eternal life and the corresponding development of the spirit, built on readiness for managing the perception of any images for the purpose of eternal life.

Unexpected narrative transitions reveal events eternities that are expressed by the diversity of reality, allowing thinking to control it.

The Creator who formed the controlling thought that creates events necessary for eternal life under any objects of reality and perception, has knowledge that guarantees him eternal life.

HAYRUKULUS

Hayrukulus lived on the top of the mountain. He was brave and courageous. He was a bird that looked into itself and saw its reflection in the sky and in the clouds. He became a cloud when he wanted to fly.

One day he was lucky enough to see at the bottom of the cave a huge snake that tried to eat him, but he was in time grabbed her by the neck and took her to the sea. There she began to live, multiply, see new worlds. And here the first ones arose animals. So the whale appeared, and other sea-dwelling mammals appeared, which began to emerge from the sea and fill the land, as is well known. And it turned out that those who were on land – they were already there.

When Hayrukulus saw this essence of the world, he understood that he should not remain a bird for long. He decided to transform into an earthly beast: into a lion, into a tiger, into a panther. At the same time, he saw himself as if they were together.

And he flew to another planet. It was cold on Mars, it was there was little water, and life was such that we had to drink all the time.

He flew to Jupiter. There he began to become a man. And Seeing himself in the form of a man, he understood that a bird that wants to be a man is already human. He became peaceful. He stopped killing. He began to eat insects only so that they would survive in his body and come out alive. Thus, Hayrukulus met Leyli.

Leyli lived in seclusion. She was very beautiful and graceful. Her the head was looking at the image of the bird Khairukul all the time. He saw his previous image, and therefore Leyli was very charming for him, because she was originally a human. She was born by him. And here he saw that the man born from her was the first man, who was even before Leyli. Among the common people, he was called Adam. He was very brave. He ate the branches of the trees on which apples hung, but the apples were not damaged. He knew the culture of food. And one day, when he forgot himself, he began to eat the apple itself.

Here the systems he was on collapsed. He didn't was able to restrain himself. And here the first destruction appeared. They called for self-destruction and were forced to fight it. Some of them passed into those and became those who are destroyed, and some remained immortal. At the same time, their thoughts were united, and those who had already begun to strive for life, began to strive for immortality. He understood that he would now have to fight for this.

Hayrukulus was smart. He saw that Leyli needed knowledge. He began to explain to Adam. And knowing that through Adam Leili would see knowledge, he began to improve Adam.

Hayrukulus turned into a dragon. Sandrak, he was very smart. and at the same time he knew what a person was. He knew that he could not be eaten, that you have to talk to him, that you have to emit gas, which in his mind he perceived as fire. Because a person he is clairvoyant, he sees, he was near God, and he knows what is in future. Hayrukulus was so smart that he made it clear to a person that a person is also smart.

Thus Leili saw herself, and they had a child. child. They named the child Alias. Alias was very optimistic, cheerful, smart. He knew what would happen in 2012. He saw that this year there would be nothing that would be supernatural, ending. There will be no end of the world - Alias knew. He told Leyli about it, and she bragged to Adam. Here Hayrukulus saw that they were in a community, that they were earthlings, who invite him to live on his planet. And he saw his a joyful future, which seemed to encompass all of his hypostases, which he had only dreamed of.

This is what the man thought, sitting on the mountain and perceiving himself in yoga as one with Hayrukulus. At some level nirvana, he stopped perceiving self-awareness in terms of his physical essence. He realized that his physical essence is omnipotent. He can see through the eyes of a bird, and he can fly. He can see through the eyes of a lion.

He saw himself sitting on a mountain, with a lion passing by nearby. And then he asked the lion: "Who are you?" "He is who you are," the lion replied.

And his ear began to glow. It began to turn red, first the left, then the right. Hayrukulus became embarrassed. The man sitting on the top saw this and understood that embarrassment is an obligation to do something that does not embarrass you. He was embarrassed by the vulnerability of the world, and the world was such that it needed to be improved.

He began to organize and bring down knowledge from the mountains, which flowed in thin streams through the whitish valleys of the meadows, foothills and peaks. And the white snow reflected this knowledge back into the eyes of Hayrukulus and the man who was on the top. His name was Man.

He became intelligent. He began to dig caves. He became multiply, but at the same time he remained in unity with God, and everything that was from him, his next children were also united with God. These tribes began to descend. They began to conquer Europe, Asia, but there were already their own tribes there. Thus, the unity of peoples arose, and the distant planetary system, reminiscent of a dog and even in some ways a lion, began to notice that on the planet called Earth, which the earthlings themselves invented in their thoughts and called it that, civilization began to grow, the movement that interested them began to take place. The planet of dogs - that's what man called it. And seeing this planet, he began to realize that the first dogs would soon appear. Thus, animals arose that began to multiply. And from the image of a lion, many others appeared animals that are related to the primary snake and that were very vulnerable because they were in the elements, in nature. Here the Man and Hayrukulus immediately had the same thought: how to make nature manageable?

Communist society, which put man above all nature, in this case did not give any specific activities that ensure this. Only religious knowledge were the hope of Hayrukulus and the Original Man. They saw the future, so they read history. They knew that in 2013 there would be a very big problem, which would result in the recognition of eternal life by many people around. And this is the element that is beginning to be mastered. They understood that rationality is the ideal image of a person, and they began to strive for this.

From one head, where there is primary thinking, they became the next and the next were born. And generations appeared, who were already born with great knowledge of eternity. Hayrukulus understood that this had to be taken into account. The years from 2014 to 2017 AD were years when knowledge of eternity flourished among a huge number of the population. Their insides, stomachs and intestines became eternal before they realized it. And at the same time, the food was ground so that it was not all digested in the same way as it had been before 2012.

Here they saw that there are micro changes that affect all, these are micro-changes of eternal life, this is self-touch. Hayrukulus went further. He walked forward year after year and saw more and more of the past. The past grew in the same way as man saw it. He saw that man can see through the eyes of a bird, and a bird can see through the eyes of man. And at the same time, animals can understand what a person is thinking if he sees them. And also know what is ahead, if a person does not see them with physical sight. Thus a spiritual unity of animals and man arose. And animals stopped being destroyed. Civilization became eternal not only around man, but also around the entire Universe. The Universe began to shrink, reaching the level of the Earth, and everyone understood that the Earth is a Universe that will expand and shrink, but it will have no end. And the one who is born perceives the Earth in this way. He thinks that he was born in the Universe, because he does not quite know exactly what is beyond his crib and the room where he sleeps and even when awake.

Everyone began to see that the children had become wiser. They were becoming often wiser than adults, and adults had to gain intelligence, to understand the thinking of children. Thus civilization headed in eternity through the realization of eternal knowledge and eternal health.

Here he and she appeared, who knew that eternity was theirs unity, this is their love. And love gives birth to the next eternity, because it itself is eternal. Thus, Hayrukulus came to know human love. He knew that it exists, but for the first time he saw it visually between two people who love each other infinitely strongly.

Here he understood that the knowledge of love is the first thing that must be brought into the light. He again turned into a bird in his spirit, into a proud bird - an eagle, and began to move upward, where the crows were fighting.

The crows were fighting over a piece of old, worn-out linen. He didn't I paid attention to them at first, but they started to get closer him, to fly around other planets and eat the food that was located on these planets and surrounded these planets. They saw that the Milky Way, which is very huge, was also accessible to the crows. And then Hayrukulus realized that he needed to enter into Shiko case.

Shiko slept for a long time. He slept in the cave for millions of years. And when he woke up, he saw that Hayrukulus had grown up.

"Hello, Hayrukulus," Shiko said. "You've become an adult, I I saw you when you were a baby.

"Yes," said Hayrukulus, "I saw you sleeping, but at the same time my growing up stopped where you said about the eternity of the world.

Shiko said:

- That's why I advise talking from the very beginning, in childhood that there is eternity because growing up gains an eternal foundation and you begin to develop as friends.

"How is Leyli?" asked Shiko.

"Leili is fine," said Hayrukulus. "She is with Adam, they have Alias. They live together.

"She saw me," said Hayrukulus.

"That means a lot," Shiko said. "Did Leyli see Vilyusa?

- Vilyus? Who is this? - asked Hayrukulus.

- Oh, you don't know about Vilyus? You should have known that. the side of evil, which is on that side of the mountain, and which is located on the other side of the sky.

"Look," said Shiko, "I said 'po toi', 'then' three times." And after all, how does one language transform into another? Like the Chinese language originated, for example, from New Zealand? Or from Russian? "After all, the words are so combined that the primary meaning of the words is embedded in

"in the depths of your consciousness," said Vilyus.

"But he is smart," said Hayrukulus.

Shiko said:

- He was very kind. But when the Earth began to swallow him, he I realized that I needed to survive, but I didn't understand what knowledge I needed to know to do this to use.

- So knowledge is something that is given in a variety of ways, and it is necessary to choose from, yes? – said Shiko.

- You can choose the knowledge that gives both infinite your development, and at the same time you will not be evil, but you will be kind. But the original choice in your soul. The soul that is born can change yourself, and you can be in the air and sun as much as you need to know the sea. And Vilyus did not bother with such questions, he simply rose up and fell to the very bottom. So he is there now. He is trying to get out, but he lacks knowledge.

The resurrected ones periodically pass on some knowledge to him, but but he demands too much from them. He demands from them the energy that they must know. The time of knowledge, as well as knowledge about knowledge, they require effort. He does not want to make efforts.

"Viljus is strange," said Khayrukulus and flew to Leyli.

He asked Leili:

- Do you know about Viljus?

"Adam saw him," said Leili, "but he didn't speak."

about this to Alias. Because Alias must learn everything himself.

And recently he said:

- I saw that uncle. He was tall, but at the same time he was kind of disembodied. He didn't stand for long. Everyone lives a very long time, but he just a few minutes. Where did he go – I don't know. I said right away Leyli, my mother. So I consider her my mother.

"Yes," said Adam, "she is your mother, and you did the right thing." saw the brevity of this man. Because he did not asks questions about eternity, he wants to live in himself. And he wants that moment that he has just felt, he does not want the water of eternity. He drinks the water of the moment, its drops flow down his moustache, that is why he is so tall. The drops flowing down create the effect of horizontality. In fact, he is completely vertical, he is flat.

And we see the life that we ourselves want to see, which we want to know. And at the same time, this life, it is moralizing. We We must see it as it is, and we must not think that it is behind us or in front of us. It is in us.

- The essence of life is where Adam, Leyli is, - so thought Hayrukulus and approached Alias.

"Do you see me, Alias?" asked Hayrukulus.

- Yes, I see you, but only with my left vision. You're standing behind me.

me, - said Alias. - I see you, but you are in another time.

"That's right," said Hayrukulus. "And when will I come to you?"

"Whenever I want," said Alias.

"Yes, a mature generation is being raised," thought Hayrukulus and began to go up, higher and higher. Where there was visual the sun folded into song.

But Alias was a man of the future. He grew up, and his face began to flourish. His face became brighter, and he walked towards his a happy future just as thousands, millions and trillions of others. They had a lot of space, they had there was a lot of time. And time began to become space, and the thought began to become reality. And they became who they are. And here Hayrukulus realized that he should also become like that. The image of a bird, which pursued and who he was originally, and also the image of the snake became to combine and merge. They began to rotate around each other with at such a speed that a man began to appear.

"So that's the answer," thought Hayrukulus. "If there is the rapid movement of two substances is the third, originally given by God, and by God himself, then man appears.

"That is, man is an inevitability," thought Hayrukulus.

So what is the point of cherishing these images of birds or animals, if there will be a person anyway, because he is the image of God.

- Initially, the Creator of the entire Universe invites everyone to himself and creates his own image, - this is what Khairukulus thought, peacefully lying on the shore of a beautiful lake, where immortal fish swam, eating each other, but none of them died. They fed on the fact that the larger one ate the smaller one. At that moment, the smaller one remained alive, and the larger one ate its fill.

The feeling of satiety of the larger fish made the smaller fish feel full too. They lived in a very closed system of biological connections and features, such that the cave seemed to hang in the air. They did not know that for the cave to be on Earth, there had to be Earth. They thought that everything was as it should be. No one told them that it was unnatural, that it was unreal. And they lived in a distant point in space, far from the Milky Way, but they thought that they were earthlings, because they spoke the earthly language, or rather thought.

Sishu thought with her left eye. It was a swordfish by earthly standards. In fact, it was a female fish Xishu, which was in the center of the planet, and huge rivers and waters merged into this fish.

She saw that the microbiological studies that are carried out on Earth, they do not take into account the omnipresence information, and at the same time the future development may be some thus suspended in terms of intensity, unless they they will understand that everything small, everything elementary merges into everything global. Sishu thought that she needed to fly there.

"Where are your wings?" she asked Hayrukulus.

Hayrukulus said:

- I only have my image in the form of a bird.

"Pass it to me," Sishu asked him.

"But you are a fish," said Hayrukulus.

"So what," said Sishu. "I have fins, I'll think that these are wings, and I'll fly to Earth, and I'll say that Microbiology must be merged with eternity, with the external eternal world.

"Okay," said Hayrukulus. "Think that you are a fish, but just so you have wings.

"Okay," said Sishu.

She gained wings and flew towards the Earth. Near her comets flew by. One of them was the one that allegedly threatened the Earth in the 2030s. But it was not a planet and not even a comet. It was just the consciousness of the distant Leshu. Leshu, he was very far away and at the same time did not know where he was and that he was there at all, because he was very drunk. He got drunk on one of the neighboring planets of the solar system and thought that he was on Jupiter, but it turned out that he was actually on the third planet from the family of five and was very concerned about his drunkenness. Because it threw him off balance, and he thought so crazy that Sishu was somewhat offended by him for his tactless thinking, for his behavior. She pointed out that the world mind, the world community of different planets and civilizations ask to think culturally, not to spread false information in their thinking.

"Yes, yes," said Lesha in his sleep in his drunken stupor and again I forgot myself almost in delirium tremens.

But here he saw that Sishu is not quite Sishu. She has wings, and she flies towards the Earth.

"Why are you moving there?" he asked Lesha.

"There is a civilization happening on Earth," said Sishu. "There is the center of the world now, let's go there. We will turn into fish and, like Hayrukulus, we will glide over the seas, oceans and impart to people the knowledge that they need to know.

"Can you turn into a seagull?" Lesha asked Sishu.

- I can, but I want to be a fish.

And they found themselves at sea. However, Sishu became a crocodile, to know the essence and turn into a fish. That essence crocodile, which they initially needed, she was learned on a random plot. And she became that fish, which is elusive and which gives energy at a distance. So they began to disperse energy and turned into dolphins.

And so two dolphins, Sishu and Lesha, began to move in the direction of the sailing ship. A very white ship, almost "The Flying Dutchman". But it turned out that they had gained so much speed, that they jumped over two centuries, and before them was sinking ship.

Here one of the passengers asked:

- Are you Lesha?

"Yes," said the dolphin, "I'm Lesha, but how did you recognize me?"

"And I was there," said the man.

- No way! Even if I was drunk, I could have notice. How could I not see you?

"That's it," said the man. "Because I'm a man, I have there is consciousness, and because Leili told me that Adam must be eternal. And I strive for this. Why am I not drowning, and I know you?"

"So you know everything!" said Lesha.

Sishu confirmed:

- Yes, they are all-knowing, because they follow the path of eternal life, and there it is impossible not to know something, and they are forced to know everything, it is their duty. It does not burden them, because at that moment they know what they need, and they strive to know more.

"It's very convenient," Lesha said with a smile. "Why?"

then, for example, I don't know everything, but at the same time I think that I know everything?

"Because you are not Sishu, but Lesha-shu-shu," the forest rustled.

The person who thought about it saw all these stories, saw a mushroom growing. He thought: "Why call me Alexander? And why is it such and such a century now? Not the next one?"

If I had more power, I would have done it completely differently. I would have made sure that civilization was united from the start and was the same as it was in ancient times. I would have combined the past with the future and would have received the power that goes into eternity and infinity."

But these were only thoughts, his fingers were fingering the piece tree, broken from the nearest branch. And he thought: "Why "Did this branch crack? I have to think about the fact that I am here, but I also have to think about the fact that the branch must be eternal. Where is this eternity, and how can I get it now from this branch, so that the next one will be eternal."

So he thought in his thoughts. Before his eyes flashed Sishu and Lesha. Vilyus periodically flickered, then stopped. And here Shiko appeared, who had already lived for more than one million years. And he did not know that he lived so long because he knew that he did not die.

When he saw the sun, he first thought that he was the sun, but it turned out that he was Shiko.

This was the legend about Shiko, he did not deny it. He loved to take a little salted fish on the right cheek and suck on it for a long time. This to wash down with a good mug of beer when he was a man. And at the same time, he really liked the person's consciousness.

"Shiko was peace-loving," thought the second man, who was located in another forest in the foothills of the Andes.

And these two thinking people united their thinking, and they saw that their thoughts were united. One of them was Alexander, and the other was Alexandra, a woman, a girl, very beautiful. And they knew that they would meet. They walked through the forest towards each other, and the wind conveyed to them a fairy tale about themselves and their happy love.

And they met on the plane on the flight Tyumen - Krasnodar, and then to Boston. They were getting to Boston. When they saw the first rays of the sun over Boston, they thought that they had already arrived.

And that fairy tale of music, embracing the dawn, which usually happens during landing, began to grow, and they began to tell each other with delight how they observed Shiko, how they saw the impossibility and inability of Vilyus in his secular understanding to move upward. And how they saw Sisha and Lyosha, rushing to help the earthlings. Here they joined hands, and the plane began to vibrate sharply, lose altitude, then gain again. And they understood that the movement of their fingers controlled the plane.

Here they saw the dawn that they would never see again. I wanted to look at it. It was a dawn foreshadowing a thunderstorm, man-made disaster, and they realized that they had to do something heroic to prevent a disaster, to prevent a nuclear war. And they sent their impulse to Nagasaki to the first proton, the first neutron that appeared at the site of the explosion in Nagasaki, in Hiroshima. Here they saw that they were preventing a war in Los Angeles and Boston. Moreover, they prevented it in the future. Now they can calmly descend on a plane to the current reality, where there is no talk of any war.

So they landed. The Boston sun was shining right in their faces. eyes, and they thought that they would go as far as they necessary, across the airfield. They began to walk near the ramp, but the corridor was narrowed, and the police approached them.

A policeman of enormous stature, a very plump American, asked Alexander:

"Is this your Sishu?" he said, pointing to the box in which the animal was sitting.

- What? He's already here? - said Alexander.

"How do you know what I thought about him?" he asked.
policeman.

The policeman pulled out the small one with a casual movement a machine in the form of a device, small in weight and size, and said:

- Here it is, the machine. It thinks, and I think after it, that's why I I know what you're thinking. We all think like this car, if we want, but only some of them, like your Alexandra, they can rise above the machine mind. And that is why I do not ask her where Sishu is. I ask where Leshu is, who is billions of years old? Only the mind that can embrace infinity can think in the categories of someone who is billions of years old.

"You're right," said Alexander, clapping him in a friendly, loyal manner. policeman on the shoulder.

But his shoulder was stuffed with cotton wool, and he turned out to be shorter and thicker. So reality has changed. So lofty thoughts have moved to the level of what we often see as the greatest the mind, the greatest thinking is imprisoned in some in some corner, in some cage, and we don't give this thinking spread. That's how we hold back our thoughts, that's how we we allow ourselves to leave the cage only when we realize it. And he came up and released Sisha, who had the ability not only gain wings, but managed to think through the image of Shiko, from cells. He became a huge thought, which meant the endless life of a person. The policeman was surprised - how huge he was. He had seen such huge, artificially constructed heroes of this film in the American films "Ghostbusters", but he did not expect that a thought could be so huge, so real. He carefully touched the growing thought with his finger and realized, that it is very significant because it is real.

"That's a significant thought," said the policeman, "in In forensic science it would be recognized as evidence, but thoughts This can't be.

As soon as he said this, Shiko turned into a little animal again and found himself in a cage, but with the door open.

The demonstrated practice of reality allowed Shiko take a step towards freedom. He was in the form of an unusual little animal. so plump, with a sharp little muzzle and small with sparkling eyes that seemed to penetrate into consciousness, trying to pull something out of it, take it apart, and maybe even eat it. However, he did not feed on consciousness, he did not want others thoughts, he thought only of himself. He was a million or more years old, he did not even know. He was born from the beginning of the birth of the world and saw God with his own eyes, so he was as if on short terms with Him and transmitted His thoughts. This thought passed to Alexander, and they united with Alexandra in a luxurious five-star hotel for a whole week. And, leaving after a week, they realized that they had a child, already big, because he had already been conceived. They saw his whole next life and dreamed that he would be an adult now. The dream came true, and they realized that his life was lived luxuriously. They began to build events for him, and they provided him with a life, in spite of everything that could happen.

And so the civilization of eternity was born. Born and even the unborn will live forever. But the unborn must be created. Their souls united. They began to comprehend this science.

It was complex, difficult. It was like gnawing at the granite of science, but at the same time they created the unborn from the density of eternal matter. They scratched it out, collected it bit by bit. That is how they collected souls. At first they were unstable, because initially God created souls, and to create souls through thinking is extremely difficult. Nevertheless, they followed this path and understood that it is possible with God. They must see God. They must know Him in the eyes, and they understood that He spreads this knowledge throughout all of humanity.

They began to pass on knowledge and realized that God would send them those souls that are originally eternal, and they can create them because they can invite them. That is, they themselves are those souls created initially. Each one forges his own soul. And when they had forged their souls - as hard as steel, as straight as an endless strip of straight lines, they realized that at last they had mastered the truth that was in their essence. And people talking to each other - this is not their dream, this is their mind that chirps and that gains knowledge.

Thus, Hayrukulus saw the evolution of people in themselves himself, when everyone can develop as much as he wants. And at the same time, what is outside will flow to him as much as he needs.

Thus, Hayrukulus saw the golden age of humanity and the whole world, and he understood that this age would never end. Other civilizations began to flock to this light, which was blazing up more and more.

The Andus civilization from the distant star Platonea became move closer and closer together with their star. They began to recognize the first thoughts and saw Leyli's thoughts. "How well she thinks, though," said the first Andus. That was the mystery of this Andus civilization, that they all were called Andus. They had no other names, but they knew each other distinguished. And the difference between each other was in their hearts, in their sensuality, in their love for each other. But the name could not be change.

"It's strange," said Andus, "because Adam also has a name, which is in his heart. But their child with Leyli is named Alias. Why isn't he Andus, or isn't he Adam or Leyli? Why are they change names?"

"Because," one Andus said to another, "what they did difference and showed that the difference is eternal, therefore they have civilization has become golden, and this light draws us to itself. What each one is extremely individual, as God develops. Can create an eternal reality, and this is their guarantee of stability. And they began to try to distinguish each other not only by the essence of their glow, but also to give different meanings to the word.

They began to think: if the word "Andus" is changed, the letter is changed, then something else might happen. The first Andus took and several carefully moved one letter to the place after the word, while saved the first one and got - Andus. In one word immediately many personalities emerged.

"But this is a tribe of Hindus," said one Andus.
- No, the Indians were originally on Earth, we only we are approaching. But they already understood then that the future civilizations will try to recognize the knowledge of the Earth, and That is why they took the name - Hindus. But inside they are all distinguished by names, and this is what they call nationality.

This is how civilizations developed, they passed on to each other hidden and open knowledge, and at the same time the planet of dogs became to develop so that knowledge was passed on to cats, cats, and others domestic animals, other animals. And the animals began to become eternally, slowly, gradually, in parts, starting from the wool, which at first lay in the ground for years without changing, and then due to the mental work of people who love them, and then due to their own thinking. It so happened that animals began to think about themselves even faster than people ever did, because they had to survive. And they saw the vastness of the Universe before them. They understood that the same Andes, they had developed as independently as plants that are without light develop. This civilization that lived in a system of three mountains, had never seen the light, but they grew up as healthy people living in the light under the sun, because they had a desire to live.

Likewise, knowledge is in animals, which had to think and to transform into people in creativity, had to outgrow their body structure and go into the structure of eternal life in that perspective and at that level that God gave them initially, that is, to work with their paws and do something with their paws, and also gradually acquire the form of a person at least in the soul. And then the soul of animals began to flourish.

From the outside it looked like the level of development of a multitude flowers that began to intersect with each other, pollinate each other friend. Animals became peaceful. They realized that they could communicate with each other, and this communication began to give birth to the next civilization, which lived independently and which had its own planets.

Hayrukulus understood that this is how the world develops, which comes from man, and he decided to comprehend this world. He penetrated into the very deep micro levels of microbacteria, micro compounds, microlife. Lived among ants. And he realized that Hayrukulus began to control himself. He began to comprehend yoga, became to comprehend the teaching "On salvation and harmonious development".

Began completely different types of Teachings to develop and comprehend in oneself.

And here he realized that his thought is, first of all, what he created himself. He understood that the movement of thought in the physical space is often heavy. It can be lightened if at least even a small ant would help him and pull him along. He stopped killing ants, although, in fact, he had not done so before. never killed, as he believes. However, initially he I came to the conclusion that yes, Buddhism is right. This is the religion that allows you not to kill anything. This is absolutely true.

– The same truth is in Christianity, and in Islam, and in general in all religions that are creative, thought Hayrukulus.

And his own religious belief began to grow over him.

the conviction that the eternity of the world is something that grows in thinking upwards, and that which is spread throughout infinity and gradually compresses him, as if in a cradle, and turns him into an eternal man, into an infinite bird, into a beast, into which he wants to turn. And he understood that his consciousness is immeasurable. He understood that in the system of reincarnation there is this knowledge, which he sees only at the level of the logic of knowledge, revelations of knowledge, which existed in the form of entire theories of reincarnation. And he believes that they were also right, but in their own way. He saw that new people, new tasks, new achievements are needed. And so Shaili appeared.

Shaili was very tall. He lived on the planet Koro. He had a very good friend, whom he called his own and with whom was good friends. He did not tell Hayrukulus his name, but he called - Good.

"It's strange," thought Hayrukulus, "why doesn't he say the name?" And he simply says: "Is she good?" And why is she his friend? And not beloved and not a wife?

It turned out a little later that he was just deleting male content from the one who was next to him, and this consciousness translated him into the truth that a man should have a woman next to him. It was a planet that reproduced individuality, reproduced male and female at the expense of its own will. And when he began to reproduce his girlfriend, he realized that he had overcome the first level, but he could only get a wife with God's help. And the wife appeared before him.

It was the beautiful Alay. She was sent by God, and he understood that this is the Divine truth - man and woman. However, he continued to develop his will towards eternity and understood that development towards eternity allows one to comprehend everything. "A woman must be sent by God," he formulated Hayrukulus thought Shayli.

He shared this thought with Leyli and asked her:

- Where are you from?

that I was created by God, and from his rib. However, God created me initially, from his rib, Adam. Think about my words, Hayrukulus, and you will understand why Alias is so enlightened. Why he wants to make the planet of dogs such that it would be constantly fed from Earth and so that the dogs would be well-fed and happy, and he is ready to work for this.

Why did Shiko live a billion years and even more? Everyone knows that more, but he does not know how much, but no one helped him. And Vilyus did not touch him. After all, Vilyus can turn into a woman and a man. Vilyus did not touch him.

What kind of sensuality can there be between Shiko and Vilyus? After all, Vilyus, being a man, had many problems, but he could to be Shiko's friend, even for the first billion years. However, When he began to transform into a woman, he realized that a woman is so elevated that she cannot have contact with evil. Thus Leyli appeared - from the elevated.

And by the best of luck, Hayrukulus realized that he needed a friend who grew up just like him - from a bird, and saw how The first serpent descended into the sea.

Hayrukulus was happy. He was looking forward to the appearance of this girlfriends, but most likely he felt the appearance of his wife, his his only beloved wife. And she appeared. He tried for a long time to recognize her name and thought: "What name will she have?"

He didn't understand why this was necessary, but he felt that name, that passion and sweetness that came from him, although he had not yet seen her, already excited her heart. The heart became powerful, endless. It was eternal from the beginning, but from love it was truly eternal. True eternity is in a loving heart.

And here, one day at sunset, he saw her. It was Shiilya – Hayrukulus' love. At first he didn't even quite recognize it - either it was just his love, or it was Shiilya, that is, the person he loved at first sight and infinitely.

Hayrukulus... It's strange that at some point in the development human civilization "hai" or "heil" - it was negative, at the time of Hitler's Germany for many. Hayrukulus... But there is no "el" with a soft sign. Now he understood that "el" with the transition to "ya" hides a soft sign.

Shiilya was the very softness of love and infinity. And they spun in endless love, although they kept their distance. She calmly drank a cup of coffee and touched the edge of the table with her little finger. The whiteness of her skin was such that he could not tear his eyes away from this beauty. The little finger trembled a little nervously. Perhaps she was simply trying to tap out some melody with her little finger, but this melody sounded in Hayrukulus's head. Hayrukulus heard this melody in himself. He saw its reflection in himself. He understood that he could not live without her, she had to be with him.

He asked Shiilya: "Where are you?" He did not ask the question about marriage, but it turned out that Shiilya is a wife, already a wife. Whose it is unclear. He could not recognize whose. She had no husband. She behaved in such a way that she was only his. And he realized that it was a mistake - her marriage. She realized it and always knew it. They merged their lips, the bed under them turned into a spinning world. They swam as if on a submarine. They looked at reality from the depths and saw Sisha there.

She saw their submarine, and a huge eye looked through it. porthole. And their submarine was such that their bed stood in the center of a glass sphere that floated forward across the ocean floor and further and higher. Sishu looked at them and wanted to swallow them, but Shiko appeared. Shiko, the one who was long ago, who is millions of years old and who has been observing this world for a long time, and realized that in this world there is only love.

He said to Sish:

- Why do you want to swallow it? It's clear that they don't will be digested and will be alive, but this will not give them eternity. More you know that love cannot be swallowed.

Sishu said:

- Yes, I didn't want to swallow it. I just needed to, so that they can see that the process is under control love itself, in the feeling of love itself, and there is no need for additional do something about it. You just need to love and move in this love where love moves. In this case, it is necessary know that eternity is also work, and you need to do it.

Here Adam appeared in the thinking of Hayrukulus, who said:

– My original eternity was that I knew what I was doing, but when I lost control without love, everything collapsed. It is necessary to have love, to have control, so that it is not lost, and so that the inner sense of control was such that it recognized eternity, so that we can see the world that we always see, so that the love that is in us will be endless and eternal for all in their consequences, but individual for themselves.

True love is always only yours, but its light touches everyone.

They sat in the secret service office and discussed this topic, sipping vodka, stirring it with beer. The beer was Bavarian, but from the 18th century. It was discovered by chance in an abandoned basement. There was a war going on in the bunker. They were testing quite powerful weapons, and it was only possible to get out if you thought correctly. They they thought for a long time, about two days. The shots grew louder, weapons tests were approaching. The real war was going on in two kilometers from the bunker. And here

Shiilya looked at Hayrukulus in eyes and realized that they were the people who would survive. Wall suddenly collapsed. An open exit opened up, and they they ran into the forest in dashes, although the bullets were whistling, but they were far.

So they survived because they realized that they wanted to live forever. And the man who sat in one forest, and the other one who sat in another, and they, who survived in this cave, in this war, they were all united by one common feeling of eternal life, a common awareness of it. And it didn't matter where they were, they would have lived forever anyway. As it turned out later – near them the war stopped. Already running up to the forest, they stopped hearing the noise of shots. They are the stop of the war.

The man who wanted to scrape the twig could not break it off, because it became eternal, as man wanted. And the third man sitting in the forest, and even if there is the next one sitting in another place, walking or doing something, as soon as he thinks about eternity - then eternity begins to grow. It begins to grow, like a crystal that begins to take over the whole world. The world becomes eternal, but the same. A crystal that is infinitely strong, but which does not change the properties of this world. This is a different destiny of reality. This is the destiny that is embedded in the heart of man and which was learned on the planet Andus. That is why they were initially the same and only then began to change, when understood that the Earth is leading in eternity. But they learned the properties of the crystal earlier.

Look at the world around you and you will see many properties, that need to be known. Look at the distances between the stars, if you perceive them with your eyes, and you will see that the right eye perceives somewhat differently than the left, and in this difference is eternal development. Two perceiving eyes are already eternity. Paired organs are already eternity. Pairs are eternity, which is based on the love of a man and a woman, and it spreads to infinity. Love of couples is paired love, This is what leads to eternity, the paired triune love.

As for the trinity of the world, when we consider love in its triune aspect, we see that in love it is simple everything is reflected, for it is indivisible, and it cannot be spread somewhere without the will of love itself, without the will of the one who owns it. After all, love is also the most controllable feeling, because it completely owns a person.

Therefore, the person owns it completely, and therefore she gives such pleasure to the lover. The feeling of complete control and a feeling of complete independence. A lover does not depend on circumstances in essence, because he loves, and for him, as they say, the sea is knee-deep.

And so, eternity built on love is the same as that a submarine that is invincible, invulnerable, and is given wonderful opportunities for common love, for loving ourselves for ourselves, for loving each other.

Hayrukulus quickly, with great speed, realized his love. He was happy, he was bathing in this love, and he saw his future life happy and wonderful. And when he He saw his love and realized that they would live forever.

He took Shiilya's hand in his mind, then took her hand in his own. hand, and the hand began to transform into a human one from the image of a bird, united by the understanding of the snake, and he understood that love makes the image of a man. He bathed in the happiness of love and understood that God is truly love. When he walked along the seashore, he saw that desires materialize Shiilya near him. His thinking was such that he saw an elongated bridge going over the sea, which is held as if by nothing. These are future civilizations facing the sea. Cars move along this bridge, helicopters, airplanes and other installations fly above it, moving due to other energies, but no one thought: "Why is the bridge just hanging over the sea?"

For them it was already natural. It was the 23rd century. Others cars, other helicopters. Many were made simply because that it was so usual, but the technology was such that many metal was replaced by thinking. And coming out of machines man immediately brought reality to the point that it itself the machine was disappearing. It was a new technology. It was a new civilization. And he realized that the eternity of machines is in the very thinking people, just like in the 25th century, artificially reproduced system – machines can already participate in the creation of elements people.

Thus, man has given properties artificially reproducible systems such that they began to reproduce man, that is, to help him in his eternal development. Thinking a person becomes less burdened in this regard, and he begins to think further, what will happen to him beyond eternity, beyond the eternity of his love. And the most important thing is that he knows that it will be the same love, and therefore he is happy. The eternity of the world is eternity of love. Eternity of events is also eternity of love, which envelops a person and makes his heart impregnable to rage, hatred and everything else, and makes him only loving, only infinitely developing and infinitely living - an eternal person. Initially eternal, as he should be, when he has a calm transparent thinking, not burdened by any circumstances of possible problems.

Only the essence of this thinking is that objective environment which a person realizes and personifies. He is in himself.

Hayrukulus realized that it was time to pass this information on to Leyli. He said that he met Shiilya - this is his love.

Leili told him:

- Yes, I see and understand this, but it was originally, when The first time Adam confessed his love to me, he gave me the first flower, it was not the color it should have been then.

Hayrýkulus thought about the color and realized that it was golden love that he saw was what Shiyla had above her head in the form of a glow. "So that's it," thought Hayrukulus, "that means Shiyla is an ordinary person." And that he fell in love with an ordinary person, an ordinary woman – that was incredible to him. After all, he had known civilization from birth and understood that a woman is more than the birth of civilization, it is love itself. Then he ran to Leyla again. Adam was nearby. He, without even paying much attention to him, asked:

- And how was Alias born?

"From love," said Leili. "On the planet where he was born,
There was only love, flowers and birds.

Hayrukulus grabbed his head.

- What? There is a planet of just birds? Why didn't I know? - asked Hayrukulus.

"Because you were the bird itself in my dreams," said Leili, and you did not distinguish the planet and your image from yourself, for the image

gives birth to itself.

"Yes," said Leili, "you have grown wiser, Khairúculus."

Hayrukulus smiled inwardly. He, who has neither began in birth and has no end, listens to this woman, practically with her mouth open. Adam is also listening to her. And she says as if she knows everything.

It was amazing – her knowledge was transmitted through her experience, through her faith, and he began to probe with his fingers, with all his the essence of this concept is faith. "Faith gives knowledge," he thought. Hayrukulus. He thought that if we take the Russian language and If we look at his name in the transcription of the Russian language, there is the word "ruku" and there is "us".
Hayrukulus - take note. And what to take note of?

By hand. "El" separates "hand" and "mustache". "And these are people," thought Hayrukulus.

So he began to realize the meaning in every word and find essence and common in love for this world. He began to understand that the world is infinite in human understanding, and the understanding of the world makes man infinite. So he saw those worlds, which were created in his imagination, and he realized that Shiko is not the object of his imagination. There may be such lovers of beer and other life-giving liquids who can live for centuries and billions of years, but not to pay attention to what is around is happening. "These are the costs of eternal development," he thought. Hayrukulus, - and we need to convey that the world is changing.

Eternity should be energetic, healthy and cheerful, optimistic, in a word human. What's the point of dressing up as a bird? After all, he's not an Indian." "What kind of person is he anyway?

nationality? – thought Hayrukulus to himself. – Such the feeling that a person of any nationality could be like this."

And this feeling immediately became clothed with confidence as soon as he saw Shiilya again, walking, flying like a system of arrows of love towards him. He saw her walking with wide steps and at the same time as if not touching the shores of the sea.

"She's practically walking on water now," thought Hayrukulus, "and I'm still thinking about doing this. It means that she is more perfect from the start, because she is more sincere in relation to nature and the world.

- To a greater extent, meaning with less analytics, - thought Hayrukulus.

– We need to learn to simultaneously not analyze and analyze. A very peculiar situation, but it must be done, - considered Hayrukulus, because he must be similar to her in her revelation of truth, in order to merge with her more in love. They must be close to each other spiritually.

This is what Hayrukulus thought and began to gain wisdom and knowledge.

He turned to Diogenes, but he said: "You are with your only love, in eternal happiness with Shiilu - and that is all that is needed for eternal life."
